

No to Harvest

Talk about learning to do business, and Uzma Irfan seems to be getting there with time. The lady behind last year's Film Harvest 2012 has decided not to organise the festival again. She has been advised by family to focus only on two events — Art Bengaluru and the Trousseau Week. The diarist can tell you that the first event, Art Bengaluru, is a fitting tribute to the artistically-designed mall, while the second event — the Trousseau Week — will bring business for the high-street stores located in the mall. Talk of becoming a shrewd business player... Irfan is getting guidance from the right people. After all, it runs in the family!
