

ART: Wandering, by Pragya Jain

A child prodigy, Pragya's artworks have been shown globally since 2005. The latest collection is planned around a sense of unintended, accidental, unexpected works that nevertheless hold together the essence of her original style of painting. Along with a sense of freedom to choose the end result, taking risks with her brush strokes, and drizzling paint on her geometric patterned canvases was a large part of this fulfilling experience.
